Map your future in business law

Policy analyst
Identify and review relevant research, evaluation, and statistical activities conducted by organizations to inform and be used in the development of key policy issues. Produce technically and substantively accurate reports and other products that comply with policies. Recommend future initiatives based on emerging input. Plan, conduct, and complete special analyses and other studies using relevant analytic methods to support policy initiatives. Advise senior leadership of emerging trends and recommend appropriate, effective strategies for timely response.

Compliance manager
Design and execute risk-based test plans, analyze data from multiple sources to evaluate processes and controls against regulatory requirements and guidance, and make recommendations for strengthening the design and/or execution of controls as needed. Design and execute testing to validate the implementation action plans aimed at mitigating compliance risk. Engage with internal auditors and legal counsel.

Paralegal
Provide legal administrative support for the resolution of employment related issues with all levels of professionals, as well as outside counsel. Gather information relative to legal issues and provide charge handling and litigation case assistance. Assist with litigation holds and electronic data collection, wage garnishments, investigations, internal ADR processes, and legal audits. Prepare filings and departmental reports, track litigation, and support document management processes. Conduct research involving statutes, regulations, proposed litigation, and court decisions.

Policy representative
Organize, facilitate, and provide research in support of organization's strategies and the development of new partnerships to advance these strategies. Carry out, research, analyze, and synthesize policy advice to inform internal and external meetings in identifying opportunities for advancing the objectives through policy strategies to influence international negotiations and/or decisions. Draft policy briefs and other documents that may be used to inform policymakers.
