Elizabeth Panopoulos

Elizabeth was an Academic Advisor at W. P. Carey, advising Accountancy and Finance students for 4 years prior to joining the Business Career Center (BCC), where she has been working with Accountancy, Computer Information Systems, and Business Data Analytics students. Some of the best ways that BCC supports its students is, while every major has its own assigned career coach, each coach also fully engages with all of the academic departments, as well as the employers who recruit those majors. Elizabeth feels this allows her to share the most updated information she gets from each of those interactions, and helps her effectively prepare her students for their career exploration and job search process.

What do you like about your job?

I love working with students and the W. P. Carey team. It’s wonderful to watch and aid in the process of students growing and accomplishing their goals.

What is one fun fact about your office?

I find it so interesting to hear about all of the BCC team’s diverse work experience, and how they came to work at ASU.

What is the most adventurous thing you’ve ever done?

I studied abroad in Florence, Italy, at an art school. It was the first time I’d ever gone traveling entirely by myself. During my time abroad, I learned a lot about who I am, what motivates me, and what I’m capable of accomplishing. As a result, I’ve gone on many more adventures, and I find that I’m ready to take on new challenges that I may have otherwise shied away from in the past.

Do you have any advice to offer?

Enjoy your collegiate experience. There are so many ways to get involved; take advantage of the opportunities that ASU and W. P. Carey offer. Remember there are a lot of people that care, so utilize their knowledge and expertise as you plan for your future.
