Rhea Duncan

Rhea has over 10 years working experience in Higher Education and is currently the Student Engagement Coordinator and Career Consultant for the W. P. Carey School of Business at Arizona State University (ASU) - West campus. Her responsibilities include creating engagement opportunities related to retention, leadership development, and professional career development of business students at W. P. Carey. She is going on 10 years at ASU and had a prior position as a Student Success Coordinator at the university’s Multicultural Student Services. She received both of her degrees - Bachelor of Science in Family Resources & Human Development and Master of Education in Higher Education Administration from the University of Hawaii at Manoa, her home state.

What do you like about your job?

I love to see the transformation of students from when I first meet them at freshmen orientation – all the way until I see them at graduation. I feel like a proud mama! It is a great feeling when students still keep in touch with me years after they graduate. It makes me feel confident that I have impacted them in some way.

If you could only give one piece of advice to students, what would that be?

Start now! Start researching professions and industries. Start reading and learning about the business world. Start getting involved in the many opportunities that ASU and WPC has to offer. Start networking and meeting new people. Your 4 years in college will go by fast, so make sure to fully take advantage of it!
